

Trinity Health Names Erin Denholm President and CEO of Trinity Home Health Services

Livonia, Mich., September 15, 2015 --- Trinity Health today announced that Erin M. Denholm will join its leadership team in October 2015 as the new president and CEO of Trinity Home Health Services (THHS).

"We are pleased to welcome Erin Denholm as our next THHS president and CEO," said John Capasso, executive vice president, Continuing Care Group, Trinity Health. "We are confident that Erin's energy, vision and proven track record of success will help ensure that we are delivering people-centered home health and hospice care throughout our 21-state system."

In her role, Denholm will be accountable for the overall operations, quality and financial performance of THHS. She will also provide leadership and direction in strategic planning, growth and operation of THHS' home care and hospice programs.

"I look forward to joining my new colleagues at THHS," said Denholm. "I believe in the importance of building a people-centered health system and in the work Trinity Health is doing as a mission-driven, innovative health organization. It will be a pleasure to join them in improving the health of our communities and each person we serve."

Denholm replaces Grace McCauley as the executive leader of THHS. McCauley retired in July after having served as the president and CEO of THHS since it was established in 2001. During her tenure, McCauley guided significant advances, instituting the move to the prospective payment system (PPS) and point-of-care electronic medical records, as well as the development of a home-based services sales force, cross continuum clinical care paths, and transitional and palliative care programs.

"I have always admired Grace's ability to foster positive change," said Capasso. "As she enjoys her well-deserved retirement, she can be assured we will continue in that tradition."

Denholm comes to THHS following a 20-year career at Centura Health, based in Denver, Colo., where she most recently served as CEO of Centura's home care and senior living communities. She also served as Centura's senior vice president of clinical transformation. Denholm began her career in public health nursing in 1983 and transitioned to leadership roles in home health before joining Centura in 1995. She has served as a former member of the Catholic Health Initiatives Advocacy Advisory Council, as a former board member and chair of the Colorado Home Care Association and currently serves on the board of the Visiting Nurse Association of America. A Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Executive Nurse Fellow, Denholm earned her bachelor's degree in nursing from the College of Mount St. Joseph in Cincinnati, Ohio and her master's degree in nursing from Regis University in Denver, Colo.

About Trinity Health

Trinity Health is one of the largest multi-institutional Catholic health care delivery systems in the nation. It serves people and communities in 21 states with 86 hospitals, 115 continuing care facilities and home health and hospice programs that provide nearly 2.8 million visits annually. With annual operating revenues of about $13.5 billion and assets of about $20.4 billion, the organization returns almost $900 million to its communities annually in the form of charity care and other community benefit programs. Trinity Health employs about 89,000 people, including 3,600 employed physicians. Committed to those who are poor and underserved in its communities, Trinity Health is known for its focus on the country's aging population. As a single, unified ministry, the organization is the innovator of Senior Emergency Departments, the largest not-for-profit provider of home health care services —ranked by number of visits — in the nation, as well as the nation's leading provider of PACE (Program of All Inclusive Care for the Elderly) based on the number of available programs.
